

Kimball High's Back to School Night

By Victoria and Gideon

Many parents attended back to school night at Kimball High School. Some parents were excited and some were nervous. Gervasio Murarell, a parent who attended back to school night, explains how he feels about back to school night. "I love it," he says. "It reminds me of when I was in high school." Nydia Picos, a first time freshman parent, was also excited, but a little more nervous for her child. "The teachers were great," she says. "They were good at their job and its great how they want our feedback." Picos was very nervous for her child, but when she came to back to school night she felt a little more safe. The parents who came to back to school night believe that it was definitely useful. Kimball parents adore the idea of knowing their child's teachers and being able to communicate with them if need be.

A lot of parents were surprised about how big the school is, Many parents felt safe knowing that their child is in good hands at Kimball. Namalle Regazzoni, a Kimball parent, explained, "It looks like the teachers are responsible and showed interest in their subject.

Kimball teachers also liked having back to school night. Most, if not all classes went smoothly with little to no problems. Chris Munger, an english teacher at Kimball, said, "The parents were very friendly. They were able to get whatever they needed and get out." Munger's classes didn't seem too concerned, after he was done speaking. "The senior parents didn't have too much to ask since they already knew this school. Freshman parents seem a little more concerned, but still had little to ask." The teachers believed that back to school night was very useful because it opens up a line of communication for both the teacher and parent. Parents are also able to place a name to the face that is teaching their child.

Most parents were excited by the end of the night. At the end of the night, families left feeling good about where their child is going to school. Others stayed a little longer for the cotton candy and Kimball T-Shirts.
